FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Burlington City, NJ – November 1, 2011

Doane Academy is pleased to introduce Ms. Jane Affleck as the school's new Dean of Admission. Ms. Affleck comes to the college preparatory school on the Delaware River with extensive experience in recruitment for an outdoor education program called Wilderness Ventures.

Ms. Affleck, a native of Philadelphia, PA, arrives at an exciting time for the PreK – 12 school known for its welcoming environment, small class sizes and individual attention. Enrollment has risen well over 200 students and the school has taken on a prominent role in the local community.

"Jane's character and leadership development experience gives her a great headstart on understanding and representing Doane Academy," says Headmaster John F. McGee.

Ms. Affleck, a graduate of Saint Lawrence University, comes into the Office of Admission with a passion for the school's mission to "know, love and strongly encourage students to reach their full potential."

"Doane is a special community with exciting new developments on the rise," Ms. Affleck says. "With a foundation of rigorous academics, I anticipate a continued commitment to character and leadership development through the expansion of services learning, outdoor and international education, athletics and extracurricular activities, both during the school year and summer months."

"I look forward to helping guide young people and their families toward a school that offers such a versatile and valuable education."

Ms. Affleck succeeds Ms. Susan Gillespie who was instrumental not only in increasing the school's enrollment, but also in facilitating the school's marketing transition from St. Mary's Hall to Doane Academy.
